A big run was also made the day following, when a total of 143,305 pounds were reeled off. The total for the two days was something over one hundred and fifty-two tons.

Woman Commits Suicide.

Mrs. John Leuko of the west side, committed suicide last Wednesday at her home, by shooting herself with a revolver. No reason could be given for the deed by her relatives, as she had said nothing that would lead anybody to think that she had anything on her mind that might lead to anything of the kind.

Nobody knows the particulars of the matter, as Mrs. Leuko was home alone when she took her life, and was not found for several hours afterward. Mr. Leuko, husband of the deceased woman, is employed as flag man at the Northwestern crossing. On the evening of the tragedy H. J. Leuko was on his way home from work and stopped at the crossing to see his father. The elder Mr. Leuko asked him to go home with him and help him move a stove, which the younger man agreed to, telling his father that he would wait for him at home. He went to the home of his father and mother, but when he tried to enter he found the door fastened and upon trying another door he found that it was also fastened on the inside. He thought nothing particular of this, as his mother often went over to his house or one of the other neighbors. He happened to look into one of the windows of the house, however, when he saw his mother lying on the floor.

He went after his father as rapidly as possible and together the two men cut one of the screen doors open and got into the house, where they found Mrs. Leuko lying on the floor with a revolver grasped in her hand, while there was a bullet wound in her head, showing where the fatal shot had taken effect. It was evident at once that the woman had been dead for some hours. She had been seen in the morning at eleven o'clock, and some of the neighbors had called at the house about two in the afternoon when they found the doors locked and in the same condition they were at night, so that it was evident that the deed had been committed between eleven in the morning and two in the afternoon.

Mrs. Leuko had been a sufferer from sickness for a number of years and at times was quite bad, but had been better than usual just before she committed the deed, so that no cause can be given for her rash act. Deceased was a native of Germany, where she was born 46 years ago last December. She was married to Mr. Leuko in the old country and they came to this country together and have lived in Grand Rapids during the past twenty-seven years. She is survived by her husband and one son, the latter being H. J. Leuko of this city. The funeral was held on Saturday at two o'clock from the home, Rev. Wm. Nommensen conducting the services.

Physicians Hold Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Ninth Council District Medical association was held at Stevens Point on Tuesday, May 18th, and several of our local physicians from this city were in attendance and report a very pleasant and profitable meeting. A program had been prepared for the occasion, and among the papers was one on "Treatment of Chronic Intestinal Nephritis" by Dr. O. T. Hogen of this city. Another on the "Non Surgical Treatment of Strangulated Hernia" by Dr. D. T. Jones of Wausau, and one on "Reminiscence in Early Practice" by Dr. G. Rood of Stevens Point.

The meetings were held in the club rooms of the library building, and besides the regular program the visitors were served with a banquet and a pleasant time was had generally. D. T. Jones of Wausau was elected president for the coming year, and J. W. Rockwell of this city was elected secretary. Those who attended the meeting from this city were Drs. A. L. Ridgman, O. T. Hogen, D. Waters, Frank Pomatville, W. M. Ruckle, W. O. Blanchard and J. W. Rockwell.

Entertained at Witter School. The members of the city council and the city officers were entertained at the Witter school on Wednesday evening of last week. A "demonstration luncheon" was served by the members of the domestic science class, and the classes in manual training were at work in the school, all of which went to make up a very pleasant evening. The city officers subsequently expressed themselves as highly pleased with the manner in which they were entertained.

Standing of Scholars.

A citizen who is deeply interested in the Lincoln high school has donated a cash prize of five dollars to the student making the largest gain in average standing for each semi-term. It is impossible for the student who already has a high average standing to make a large gain. On the other hand, it is easy for the student who has a low standing to make a large gain. To make the competition as fair as possible, a student who has an average for a given semi-term between sixty and seventy per cent, has his gain divided by four. The student who has an average between seventy and eighty per cent has his gain divided by three, etc. The student whose average is ninety-five to ninety-six counts for twice its value. A gain from ninety-six to ninety-seven counts at three times its value, etc.

The record for the past semi-term of the ten students making the largest gains, is as follows:

Scholar	Gain	Value
Dean Brundage	3.5	7.0
Edgar Matheson	3.0	6.0
Marion Hatch	2.5	5.0
Lloyd Wain	2.0	4.0
Edgar Schuman	1.5	3.0
George Wain	1.0	2.0
Leola Bowman	.5	1.0
Leola Bowman	.5	1.0
Leola Bowman	.5	1.0

The cash prize of five dollars was therefore given to Dean Brundage.

Will Build a Store.

The stockholders of the Johnson & Hill company held a meeting recently at which they decided to erect a new store building, although the details of the matter have not been worked out as yet. It is now the intention of the company to erect their building on the Jackson property which was acquired by them some time ago, and which will be an ideal site for the purpose.

They expect a man here to look over the premises in the near future with a view to making plans that will be appropriate. They may also take some time yet to consider just what the new building will contain in the way of departments. We hope to be able to give our readers more definite information of the intentions of the company in the near future.

Inspected the Training School.

Six members of the school board from Red Wing, Minn., were in the city on Tuesday for the purpose of inspecting the manual training building. They went from here to Wausau where they will inspect the Agricultural school. The people of Red Wing are flouting on putting up in the way of the kind, and the members of the board are getting pointers on the subject.

A Large Catfish.

One day last week while the men were cleaning out the racks at the Consolidated mill one of them pulled out a catfish that weighed 22 pounds. People who have been wondering why the catfish do not grow large in the river may hereafter be assured that they do.

SCHULTZ WAS GUILTY

Tries to Commit Suicide after He Hears the Verdict Rendered by the Jury.

The jury in the case of the state of Wisconsin against Ferdinand Schultz for rape, brought in a verdict of guilty about ten o'clock Saturday night.

The same night about twelve o'clock Schultz attempted to commit suicide, by cutting the arteries in one of his wrists, and came very near accomplishing his purpose, as he had bled considerably when discovered and was quite weak.

Schultz was being watched by two men, one of them occupying the cell with him, and had been thoroughly searched before being placed in the cell, but in some manner he had secured a knife with a small blade on his person, which he used in cutting his wrist. It was noticed about midnight that he was making some movement in bed, and his guard immediately questioned him to discover what he was doing. As his answers were unsatisfactory the guard clothes were dragged from him and it was found that he had slashed his left wrist so as to sever the artery and had already lost a large amount of blood. His wound was at once bound up and he was taken to Riverview hospital where he was fixed up and was taken back to the county jail on Sunday night.

Schultz's victim was a nine year old girl and the punishment in the case is from five to thirty-five years in state prison.

Nelkoosa Wins Game.

Nelkoosa played a game with Stevens Point on Sunday, and those who saw the contest report that Nelkoosa was a good team this year. They won the game on Sunday by a score of 4 to 0, and the indications are that they are going to play winning ball this season. There were a number of Grand Rapids people who went down to see the game and they were well satisfied with the exhibition.

Biron Home Sold.

Mrs. Beulah Biron has sold her home on 11th street to Mrs. Frank Garrison, and the latter will occupy the premises as soon as it is vacated. The place is one of the nice residences of the city and the location is ideal.

Stole Rig and Sold it.

Last Wednesday a stranger appeared at the livery stable of Wm. McGlynn and hired a rig for the purpose of making a trip out in the country, but when the time came for him to return with the outfit he failed to show up. Then Mr. McGlynn got busy and after telephoning around to the neighboring towns, it was found that a rig of the description had been sold at Stevens Point. Mr. McGlynn went there and found that it was his property and secured the same and brought it home.

The horse and buggy were sold to N. Strong, Sr., of Stevens Point, who paid $50 for the outfit, paying the man $25 down and promising to send him the rest to Madison. As the outfit was worth in the neighborhood of two hundred dollars the Stevens Point man evidently thought that he had struck a good bargain. As it is he lost just thirty-five dollars.

Work Commenced on Bank.

Workmen commenced to tear down the old foundation on Tuesday morning preparatory to putting in the foundation for the new Wood County National Bank. The old building now occupied by Mrs. Stenborg as a second hand store will also be removed, owing to the fact that it occupies a part of the lot where the bank building is to stand. As the old building is an eyesore to that part of the town, its removal will be a good thing.

Trains to be Restored.

Trains Five and Six on the Wisconsin Central, which were discontinued when the road passed into the hands of the Soo, will be put back on, so the report from headquarters says. These were two trains on the main line, one running each way, and were used a great deal by people along the line. Every town along the line put up a howl about the trains being discontinued, which probably put the officials wise to the demand there was for them.

Sausage Factory Closed.

The sausage factory and meat market owned by Jacob Lutz and operated by Charles Lutz, was closed on Saturday night, there not being enough business to warrant a continuance. The machinery will be stored for the present until another location is found.

Just Plain Drunks.

Alex Tawczyk and John Haretnski were arrested on Sunday night by Officer Heng for being drunk and disorderly. They were taken before Justice Prizingsor on Monday where they pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a fine of $1 and costs.

CRAZY SNAKE'S LAST STAND

BY EDWARD B. CLARK

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY W.A. PATTERSON

THE recent Indian uprising in Oklahoma, if by a stretch of the imagination it may be so-called, goes to show that a large part of the picturesque of the plains warfare has passed away with the years.

Crazy Snake's "last stand" was made against the militia of Oklahoma. It was not long ago that the whole western country as far as Indian population is concerned, was in charge of the regulars of the United States army.

Crazy Snake wore "store clothes." In his pictures he appears like anything but the wild untamed savage that one would put an Indian bearing such a name as Crazy Snake. The fights in the past between the palefaces and the reds were, on the Indian side, were men wearing paint of all colors, feathers, blankets, moccasins and leggings, or if the scene of action happened to be in the summer time, wearing nothing at all except breech cloth and moccasins.

Many of the old picturesque chiefs of the plains have gone to the happy hunting ground. Among them were those who died old enough to remember the day when the rifle was unknown to the red man except as a weapon in the hands of the adversary.

Old Rain-in-the-Face died not long ago and his epitaph is found in the following paragraph that the Sioux warrior and chieftain is at last in a good Indian.

Every redskin who ever raised his hand against a white man is dubbed a bad Indian. Rain-in-the-Face living was of service to the world. He added picturesque and a spirit of vengeance to the dull canvas of civilization. Something is lost every time that one of the old-time warriors of the plains goes to the land where the buffalo grass is always green and where the herds await the Indian hunter.

In the deaths of most of the great Indian chiefs of old there was always a tragic note. Most of them met violent deaths. Perhaps Geronimo, who passed away at Fort Sill, Okla., some months ago, was the only one of many aged chieftains to die a natural death.

The Indian picture of the happy hunting ground is sold by students to have made violent death the safest mode of entrance to the portals of the redskin heaven in the Indian mind. The quality of bravery displayed, the Indians also believed in the old days, had much to do with their happiness after death, and as a consequence to the fighting for their tribe was the aim of most of the old school of warriors.

Rain-in-the-Face followed Little Wound. Little Wound followed American Horse. American Horse followed Young Man Afraid, and Red Cloud is close upon their trail. Sioux chiefs and warriors all. Shall no voice lament their passing?

Most of these chiefs were Christians in a way. The water of baptism sprinkled but it never washed the war paint from their heathen hearts. The only good thing the white men ever offered them was his religion, but they suspected it as they succumbed to its outward forms. It takes more than a prayer or two and more than a little water from a font to remove from the administering clergyman the suspicion which the red man attached to all of the white race as the result of a century of dishonesty.

Out at Pine Ridge 15 years ago the little Episcopal mission church was turned into a hospital for the care of the wounded survivors of the band of Big Foot, the Sioux chief. The pews and the altar had been removed and straw had been strewn on the floor and there lay the stricken women and children—all the men of the band had met death—every one sore wounded by the bullets of the soldiers.

Where the altar had been lay the wife of a chief and her four little children, bearing the pain of their wounds with what we are pleased to call a savage stoicism. The sun came up over the desolate plain and sent its light through the stained-glass window over and above the place of the altar.

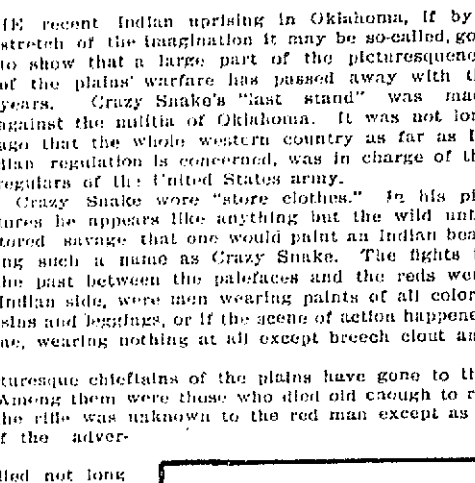

The red and the yellow and the blue fell upon the family group, and on the blankets covering the wounded children one read, transmitted by the sun and the gleam of the window, "Glory to God in the Highest." Yet the wonder is that heathenism still lays hold on the heart of the Sioux.

The tragedy of the fight at Wounded Knee, where Big Foot's warriors, the women and the children, all save a few, were slain, was not the fault of the soldiers. The men of the Seventh Cavalry lost scores of their comrades, killed and wounded. They were but doing the duty enforced upon them by years of civil service that they should fight. The Indian, strangely enough, perhaps, to those who do not know, ever has looked upon the soldier as his best friend.

When the war of the Dakota reservations was ended the chiefs of the Ogallala and Brule Sioux, Kicking Bear, Short Bull, American Horse and the rest, asked that army officers might be appointed as Indian agents in the place of the civilians who held these offices for years. American Horse, when asked why he wanted a soldier agent, took two paper bags and filled one and half filled the other. The full one, he said, was the soldier agent's bag and the half full one was the civilian agent's bag.

This was the heathen American Horse's method of describing the Indian's attitude as he came from the land of the dead with different ideas of honesty.

Captain, now brigadier-general, Charles G. Penny (retired), was the first soldier agent appointed at Pine Ridge. Capt. Penny was in command of Company K, Sixth United States Infantry, at Fort Sheridan, a company which, with its command, Company F, Capt. Munson, was sent to the post north of Chicago in the November of the year that the anarchists were hanged.

CRAZY SNAKE

Between the soldiers of the Seventh Cavalry and the braves at Big Foot's band was brought in by courier.

The chief heard of the loss of some 300 of his tribe, and said that, notwithstanding the fight and the killing, his heart was still shut against the return of hatred for the pale faces.

Not long after the Wounded Knee battle Miles and Brooke succeeded in throwing troops about the bands of hostilities, and began the task of forcing them little by little into the Pine Ridge agency and to final surrender.

There has been criticism of the action of the Seventh Cavalry at Wounded Knee—unquestionably unjust criticism—and Col. Forsythe, who was in command, had been ordered into arrest as the result of the outcry, which came from philanthropists in states far removed from the scene of Indian warfare.

Gen. Miles wanted to get the reds back to the agency without precipitating another fight and another fire of criticism. So it was that he was urging the Ogallala and the Brule Sioux to surrender, and was using his troops rather for herding and for driving purposes than for actual offense.

Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horses went to the hostile camp and harangued his brother savages imploring them to obey Miles and to come in and be bad Indians no more. Young-Man's speech had some effect. Then Red Cloud wanted to follow the example of the young chief. No one knows definitely whether Red Cloud was sent out by the general commanding or went on his pence talking errand of his own initiative, but he went.

The hostiles were north of White Clay creek and west of Porcupine Butte. Red Cloud reached their camp and he talked at the council fire. Then there happened a curious thing. On the heel of the chiefs a pack band of the young bucks broke away and began to raid. There was a fight with a squadron of the Seventh Cavalry near the Roman Catholic mission school, and an army wagon train was attacked at a place not far distant from the agency.

Red Cloud came back to the agency. Even his native command of himself could not give control to the twinkle that was in his audacity. But what a tale! was that he told! The Indians with bad hearts had rejected his plea for peace and surrender, and had driven him from his camp. He had plodded the trail from the camp to the agency, footsore and foodless, and in this day of his falling spirit he would have been lost had not his granddaughter Star-Eyes—or some such name, for her memory is at fault—led him all the way by the hand.

It was with as near a sob in his voice as an Indian ever gets that old Red Cloud told his story. "Way down inside he was enjoying the joke of it," wrote perceptive, than were his hearers. The old chief, who had made

The hostiles were north of White Clay creek and west of Porcupine Butte. Red Cloud reached their camp and he talked at the council fire. Then there happened a curious thing. On the heel of the chiefs a pack band of the young bucks broke away and began to raid. There was a fight with a squadron of the Seventh Cavalry near the Roman Catholic mission school, and an army wagon train was attacked at a place not far distant from the agency.

Red Cloud came back to the agency. Even his native command of himself could not give control to the twinkle that was in his audacity. But what a tale! was that he told! The Indians with bad hearts had rejected his plea for peace and surrender, and had driven him from his camp. He had plodded the trail from the camp to the agency, footsore and foodless, and in this day of his falling spirit he would have been lost had not his granddaughter Star-Eyes—or some such name, for her memory is at fault—led him all the way by the hand.

It was with as near a sob in his voice as an Indian ever gets that old Red Cloud told his story. "Way down inside he was enjoying the joke of it," wrote perceptive, than were his hearers. The old chief, who had made

CRAZY SNAKE

Between the soldiers of the Seventh Cavalry and the braves at Big Foot's band was brought in by courier.

The chief heard of the loss of some 300 of his tribe, and said that, notwithstanding the fight and the killing, his heart was still shut against the return of hatred for the pale faces.

Not long after the Wounded Knee battle Miles and Brooke succeeded in throwing troops about the bands of hostilities, and began the task of forcing them little by little into the Pine Ridge agency and to final surrender.

There has been criticism of the action of the Seventh Cavalry at Wounded Knee—unquestionably unjust criticism—and Col. Forsythe, who was in command, had been ordered into arrest as the result of the outcry, which came from philanthropists in states far removed from the scene of Indian warfare.

Gen. Miles wanted to get the reds back to the agency without precipitating another fight and another fire of criticism. So it was that he was urging the Ogallala and the Brule Sioux to surrender, and was using his troops rather for herding and for driving purposes than for actual offense.

Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Horses went to the hostile camp and harangued his brother savages imploring them to obey Miles and to come in and be bad Indians no more. Young-Man's speech had some effect. Then Red Cloud wanted to follow the example of the young chief. No one knows definitely whether Red Cloud was sent out by the general commanding or went on his pence talking errand of his own initiative, but he went.

MASSACRE A PLOT

MISSIONARY DECLARES SLAUGHTER PLANNED BY GOVERNMENT.

CRITICISES UNITED STATES

Tardiness in Meeting Crisis Assailed by Rev. Trowbridge in Letter to the American Board—Mutiny Leaders Arrested.

Boston.—"It is evident," writes Rev. Stephen Van R. Trowbridge, from Adams, Asiatic Turkey, to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, "that this dreadful struggle was not the crushing of an insurrection, but a deliberately planned massacre, with the connivance of the government."

The letter from Trowbridge, dated April 21, and sent by way of Constantinople, has just reached the American board, and it gives some particulars of the recent massacres not hitherto made known in this country.

Briefly describing the funeral of the disorders, Mr. Trowbridge writes: "The burial took place on Friday evening, the 19th of April. With the city in terrible disorder and scores of confagurations raging, it was impossible to take the bodies out to the cemetery. The graves were dug side by side at the edge of the city's school yard, and services were conducted by Mr. Macallum and Mr. Trowbridge."

Mr. Trowbridge criticizes the American government in the following paragraph of his letter: "All regret the tardiness of the American government in meeting the crisis. A week and three days have passed and yet not a word from the embassy. Were it not for the untiring efforts of the British consul, Maj. Doughty-Wylie, whose right arm is broken from a bullet, we could neither send letters nor telegrams."

Erzeroum, Asiatic Turkey.—Forty-five leaders of the mutiny have been arrested on charges of assisting by Field Marshal Ibrahim Pasha, commander of the Fourth army corps.

There is great uneasiness among the population of this city on account of the threatening attitude of the garrison, which has refused to accept 25 officers belonging to the Young Turk party. Djelal Pasha has gone to Constantinople to report on the situation.

BLOODHOUNDS ON TRAIL.

Charles Caldwell in Jail Following His Attention to Elizabethtown (Ind.) Girl.

Columbus, Ind.—Charles W. Caldwell, a lawyer who sought to oust Governor C. Knox, secretary of state, from President Taft's cabinet, is in custody here awaiting investigation of a serious charge. Caldwell was found in his office, after bloodhounds and armed men had sought him at Elizabethtown. Caldwell is married, and he is accused by A. M. Remey, a local politician, of molesting his 16-year-old daughter, Bolah Remey. He pleaded not guilty to both charges and his bond was fixed at $300. He was unable to give bond and was taken back to jail.

The Remey girl was closely questioned by Sheriff Cox and others. She admitted being in love with Caldwell and told a straight story of Caldwell's attentions. She said she sent her clandestine notes and gifts and had visited her since last March. She was firm in her denial, however, of any wrongdoing and said that he was just so good to her she could not help loving him. She showed a diamond ring, several pieces of jewelry, books, music and other gifts made to her by Caldwell.

Stubbins of Kansas Feels Presidential Wrath—Man He Had Appointed Will Not Get Job.

Washington.—President Taft administered a severe rebuke to Gov. H. J. Cobey of Kansas and at the same time served warning to politicians that he did not purpose to be used to promote the causes of contending political factions.

Stubbins is making a hot fight for the senate against Senator Curtis. When Stubbins got back to Kansas he announced that the president had appointed Stone as a personal favor to him and that Senator Curtis, Mr. Anthony and other members of the Kansas delegation did not cut much figure at Washington.

A. A. Perkins, County Treasurer of Granbury, Texas, says:

"Years ago a severe fall injured my kidneys. From that time I was bothered with a chronic lame back and disordered action of the kidneys helped to make life miserable for me. A friend suggested my using Donnan's Kidney Pills, which I did, with the most gratifying results. I made a public statement at the time, requesting that Donnan's Kidney Pills be sold by all druggists, 50 cents a box. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, N. Y."

Little Girl's Innocent Use of Descriptive Slang Expression Amused Fellow-Traveler.

"I was going to Patbogue," said a woman at the Waldorf, "when I saw sitting near by a little girl with her mother, the mother evidently a foreigner, the child born in this country, both surrounded with bundles in the foreign way. The child was six. The conductor came along and the child of six held on the ticket."

"I want you to put us off at Patbogue," she said, smiling up at him, "and help us with our bundles, please. My mother's a greenhorn. She doesn't know anything about travelling."

"I watched her until the two arrived at their destination, and I think I have never seen a more polite little girl or a more seemingly dutiful daughter. It was quite evident to my mind that she meant no disrespect to her mother by calling her by what would seem to us to be an opprobrious epithet. She had merely adopted one of our slang words as the very best of English."—New York Times.

Itching Torture Was Beyond Words—Slept Only from Sheer Exhaustion—Relieved in 24 Hours and Cured by Cuticura in a Month.

"I am seventy-seven years old, and some years ago I was taken with eczema from head to foot. I was sick for six months and what I suffered tongue could not tell. I could not sleep day or night because of that dreadful itching; when I did sleep it was from sheer exhaustion. I was one mass of irritation; it was even in my scalp. The doctor's medicine seemed to make me worse and I was almost out of my mind. I got set of the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them persistently for twenty-four hours. That night I slept like an infant, the first solid night's sleep I had had for six months. In a month I was cured. W. Harrison Smith, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., Feb. 3, 1908."

—What is the difference between high grade and low grade baking powders?

All baking powders are white and are sold in round cans with bright labels. They look alike, but in contents they are very different.

High grade baking powders are made of pure cream of tartar derived from grapes. They are healthful and economical to use.

Low grade baking powders are made of alum and a stringent mineral acid.

Before the Pure Food Law only a chemist could tell by analysis one from the other.

But now baking powders have the ingredients printed on the back of the label. By reading the label the housekeeper knows the ingredients and being careful of the welfare of her household, avoids the Alum kind of baking powder.

Good baking powder is one of the most useful things in the kitchen—and there is a difference.

—I will be at the Rapidist's first day of the moon and will try and cure you of such ailments which others have failed to relieve. I use no medicine, no knife, no pills. I am no specialist, no therapist, no osteopath, my power is greater than all these. Men and women that I have treated can raise their hands and swear that this is true. You may not believe it, but that matters little, for many who come to me, come as skeptics. So long and so often have they been disappointed in their search for a cure that you can not blame them. I have given relief when others have failed. I will this time be at the Wisconsin House on May 19th and 20th until noon.

A GOOD REASON.

Grand Rapids people Can Tell You Why It Is So.

—Don't's Kidney Pills cure the cause of disease, and that is why the cures are always lasting. This remedy strengthens and tones up the kidneys, helping them to drive out of the body the liquid poisons that cause backache, headache and distressing kidney and urinary complaints. Grand Rapids people testify to permanent cures.

Mrs. John Hutchinson, living at 522 Second St. N., Grand Rapids, Wis., says: "I was well satisfied with the results that followed the use of Don't's Kidney Pills in my case. For some time I suffered from headaches and pain across my loins. I had no strength or ambition and felt tired and languid all the time. The kidney secretions were unusual in appearance, and otherwise disordered. A friend at length advised me to try Don't's Kidney Pills, and I procured a box. They regulated the action of the kidney secretions, strengthened my back and made me feel better in every way."

How to Kill Flies.

The following "health hint" from the Chicago Tribune is well worth preserving to be used later in the season when house flies are numerous:

"It is important that the agency used to kill flies that get into your home be non-poisonous or not dangerous to human beings. Especially is this true in homes where there are children. A 7 per cent solution of bichloride of potassium made up with water and sweetened with sugar, and placed in shallow dishes throughout the house, will kill the flies and will not harm the children should they get hold of it. This is cheap and may be obtained at any drug store. A 2 per cent solution of carbolic chloride may be used. It is non-poisonous, but is more expensive and hard to obtain.

"Spraying ponds of water with kerosene will destroy the larvae or mosquitoes, and used in the same way in garbage boxes will destroy the larvae of flies."

—What is the difference between high grade and low grade baking powders?

All baking powders are white and are sold in round cans with bright labels. They look alike, but in contents they are very different.

High grade baking powders are made of pure cream of tartar derived from grapes. They are healthful and economical to use.

Low grade baking powders are made of alum and a stringent mineral acid.

Before the Pure Food Law only a chemist could tell by analysis one from the other.

But now baking powders have the ingredients printed on the back of the label. By reading the label the housekeeper knows the ingredients and being careful of the welfare of her household, avoids the Alum kind of baking powder.

Good baking powder is one of the most useful things in the kitchen—and there is a difference.

—I will be at the Rapidist's first day of the moon and will try and cure you of such ailments which others have failed to relieve. I use no medicine, no knife, no pills. I am no specialist, no therapist, no osteopath, my power is greater than all these. Men and women that I have treated can raise their hands and swear that this is true. You may not believe it, but that matters little, for many who come to me, come as skeptics. So long and so often have they been disappointed in their search for a cure that you can not blame them. I have given relief when others have failed. I will this time be at the Wisconsin House on May 19th and 20th until noon.

GUARDS AMERICANS

UNITED STATES REVENUE CUTTER TAHOMA ARRIVES IN TURKISH WATERS.

NEW MASSACRE IS FEARED

Soldiers at Erzeroun Threaten to Slay if the Sheriff is Not Restored—Moslem Fanatics Again Attack Armenian Villages.

Alexandretta, Asiatic Turkey.—The United States revenue cutter Tahoma arrived at this port Thursday for the purpose of protecting American interests. The Tahoma is the first American ship to appear in Turkish waters since the beginning of the massacres and disorders in Asiatic Turkey.

Cologne.—The Koelnische Zeitung published a dispatch from Samsatli saying that the Young Turk officers at Erzeroun, Asiatic Turkey, have sent a telegram to the local officers of the committee of union and progress declaring that their soldiers are refusing obedience and demanding the restoration of the Sheriff, and at the same time threatening a general strike. The message was received by the Young Turk officers at Erzeroun, who sent representatives to quiet the troops and the people, and concluded with the statement that the Young Turk officers do not dare to show themselves abroad.

Marash, Asiatic Turkey.—Distressing accounts continue to be received here from the country side of Armenia, where villages assailed by bands of Mohammedans, who, acting on the supposition that the Armenians were waiting against the government, were quick to strike the first blow. The men were killed whenever found within reach of knife or bullet. The girls were often maltreated, and some of the women carried off to become the wives or slaves of rich men.

Houses were sacked and then burned, farm animals were driven off, and small parties of horsemen rode through the country "cleaning up the Armenians." The entire population of the district, it is said, has fled to the Zaitoun region for safety. In other towns, notably Yankoun, where the Armenians were well supplied with rifles, they fought day and night and kept off the besiegers.

Constantinople.—Constantinople witnessed another batch of executions when 24 mutineers of the army and navy were hanged in public within the city limits Wednesday. This makes a total of 35 executions within the capital since the revolution of April 13.

Four of the mutineers were hanged near the sultan's palace, eight at the marine barracks, eight in the Djilzi Moudan quarter of Stamboul and four at the city wall.

Several of the courts-martial that sentenced these men to death explained the reason of the public hangings by saying that traditions of corruption so pervaded Constantinople that had the hangings not been public, the people would have thought that the condemned men had saved themselves by bribing officials or that the statement of their execution was nothing more than a political lie.

Public executions, therefore, were deemed a necessity to show that the guilty had been punished.

Prisoners convicted and condemned men shortly before they were taken to the place of execution, and commented upon the evil deeds which had brought them to their deaths. One of the condemned men spoke up and said that all the priests he had talked with on the day of the so-called mutiny, and that following had approved of his action.

Albany, N. Y.—The explosion of half a ton of dynamite in the stone quarry of the Callahan Road Improvement Company at South Bethlehem, near Albany, Wednesday, blew to atoms the bodies of 20 workmen.

Criminals Dig Tunnel to Vault—Five Men and Woman in Desperate Plot.

Gori, Russia.—A daring plan to rob the treasury of Gori, in which $1,000,000 are kept, was discovered Saturday. The scheme of the criminals, five men and a woman, was to dig a tunnel into the building from outside.

HOUSECLEANING.

HITS AMERICAN BEEF TRUST

ENGLISH REPORT POINTS OUT DANGER OF MONOPOLY.

Armours, Swifts, Morris and Hammond Companies Are Named—Testimony Is Doubtful.

London.—The departmental committee appointed in July of 1903 to inquire into the alleged combinations in the meat trade in the United Kingdom, has been driven to the conclusion that the meat trade in the United Kingdom is a monopoly.

The committee concludes that while a combination exists to a certain extent between four companies in the United States, engaged in the United Kingdom, it is not at present so powerful as to endanger the public interest as a whole. But should these firms, as seems possible, acquire considerable interest in the Argentine situation with regard to the meat supply of the United Kingdom might become serious.

"With such command," the report says, "of practically the whole imported live cattle and chilled and frozen beef trade, the firms composing such combination might be able to determine beef prices at Smithfield market and largely affect prices throughout the country."

According to the report, the representatives of the American companies in London all told the committee that they knew nothing of the conditions prevalent in the United States and, commenting on these statements, the committee says:

"The committee reluctantly is compelled to express grave doubt as to the reality of this uniform ignorance, and the assurance that the committee has thrown doubt upon the other statements made by the representatives of these firms. It is almost incredible that Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Morris & Co., and the Hammond Beef Company, the last-named representing the National Packing Company, should be in such a position in the United States as to be ignorant of the conditions in the United Kingdom."

The committee failed to find evidence of any deliberate action on the part of the Americans with the object of destroying inconvenient rivals, and it does not think that they have yet attempted to capture or control the whole beef trade in the country, as alleged. At the same time it is satisfied that the firms mentioned consult together with regard to prices and the amount of the supplies to be put on the market, and they fix the prices at which chilled beef shall be sold in the provinces, and furthermore, that provincial salesmen are practically bound to sell at the price daily dictated by the Americans.

HAIR "RAT" SAVES TWO.

Mother and Baby Escape Death in Auto Accident When Padding Acts as Buffer.

Jackson, Mich.—A large "rat" in her hair saved the life of Mrs. Richard Frost, in an automobile accident Thursday, her physicians say. Mrs. Frost and her baby were both thrown from the machine when it collided with a telephone pole and Mrs. Frost struck on her head with such force that hair pins were driven into her scalp.

At the hospital the surgeons who attended her said the "rat" saved her head being crushed. The baby was injured about the head, and it is feared both mother and child were also internally injured.

At a trial before Police Judge Stewart, both closed doors the teachers pleaded not guilty. Their trial was set for May 22.

The teachers accused the little boy of stealing a five-dollar bill from Miss Tilden. When he denied the charge, he says they first gave a chair and beat him with switches and pinched his cheeks and body.

Children See Three Drown.

Pittsburg, Pa.—To save five cents' bridge toll, five school children, who had been out of work for many months, attempted to cross the Monongahela river at McKeesport, a suburb, in a small boat, which sank as they got into midstream, drowning three of them. Five hundred school-children enjoying their first day's diversion in a new playground, were watching when the search was abandoned at dark Wednesday night for the victims of Tuesday night's ferryboat accident.

Use for Irish "Wild Flax."

Some local men of enterprise, in Connemara, Ireland, are wondering if the plant known as "wild flax" which grows extensively in the mountains of Connemara, could be developed into a native industry.

The flax is a native of the mountains of Connemara, and is a very hardy plant, and its cultivation would stand the test of the best manufactured rope or twine. Steps are being taken to organize a syndicate to try to develop the growth of the plant by the people of the general land office.

COWBOY IN CABINET

New Secretary of Interior Was Once a Plainsman.

Richard A. Ballinger Prepared Himself for College While Driving Cattle—Classmate of His Predecessor, Garfield.

Washington.—If photographs have been published, and stories have been told of Richard A. Ballinger, former commissioner of the general land office and former mayor of Seattle, now secretary of the interior in President Taft's cabinet, but not one of these accounts tells of Judge Ballinger's life as a cowboy on the plains of southwestern Kansas 30 years ago.

Three years he spent in the saddle, herding droves of cattle across the range, and to this day he recounts interesting experiences that his fellow cabinet officers will doubtless call upon him to repeat. On one occasion he was almost killed by the hoofs of an unruly broncho.

During these years he studied the classic languages, riding many miles across the plains each week to recite his lessons, and by his own efforts he prepared himself for college. He was a classmate of James H. Garfield, back of a century later, made him general land commissioner.

At the hospital the surgeons who attended her said the "rat" saved her head being crushed. The baby was injured about the head, and it is feared both mother and child were also internally injured.

Richard Frost, the husband and father of the child, was driving the automobile when the accident happened.

Discuss Experiment Station

Wausau, Wis., June 1.—An important meeting was held at the office of Dr. F. P. Magill at Wausau on Tuesday when the committee of the Cranberry Growers' Association met to discuss the establishment of an experiment station for the investigation of cranberry problems. The establishment of an experiment station has long been much desired by the growers and present indications point to an early consummation of their plans.

Those present at the meeting were: Prof. William P. Brooks, director of the Massachusetts Experiment Station at Amesbury, Charles H. Preston and S. C. Damon of the same institution, and the following members of the legislative committee recently appointed by the president of the growers' association: Irving D. Hutton, L. B. H. Jenkins and Dr. F. P. Magill. The committee organized by choosing Dr. Magill as chairman, Dr. Brooks as secretary, and Dr. Hutton as the member representing the growers.

Dr. Brooks and his associates assured the committee that they were ready to co-operate with the growers in the establishment of an experiment station and that plans for its consummation will be put in motion at once. It is proposed to secure the services of Prof. H. J. Franklin as director of the station and it is expected that he will be ready to take charge by the first of August. This will be planning now to the cranberry growers from the fact that Prof. Franklin is well known to the growers as an expert and able investigator whose work upon the insect question has been of much benefit to the growers.

In order to bring about the accomplishment of the desired ends it will be necessary to secure the hearty cooperation of all the cranberry growers and to their part in the station is to be shared. The plan will be more fully explained to the growers in circular which is to be issued soon.

No Danger in Using Arsenates

Articles which have been published in some of the newspapers of the state, calling attention to the fact that Prof. Hutton of Colorado believes that he has proved that the use of arsenates in spraying for insects is dangerous and that it has in numerous instances caused the death of trees, and with a matter of such great importance that it seems desirable in order that the public may not be misled nor unnecessarily alarmed, to state that Prof. Hutton's conclusions are not generally accepted either by entomologists, botanists or horticulturists connected with the different experimental stations of the country as being reliable.

Dr. E. J. Ball, entomologist of the Utah Experiment Station, who has paid particular attention to this subject, says in the conclusion of an address delivered before the Utah Horticultural Society, "That the conditions described by Dr. Hutton and attributed to the effects of arsenical spraying occur over widely distributed areas and have killed thousands of trees on which no arsenic has ever been used, and that therefore arsenical poisoning cannot be the primary cause of this condition; that the only trees positively known to have died of arsenical poisoning were the two to which soluble arsenate was applied, a compound which no one has ever used for spraying purposes."

"The soil characteristics throughout the region with which both Dr. Hutton and Dr. Ball are most familiar are radically different from those existing here. In many localities the western soils are strongly impregnated with alkali and Dr. Ball believes that it is the injurious effect of this alkali, combined with the injurious use of water in irrigation, that is chiefly responsible for the trouble with orchard spraying which Dr. Hutton ascribes to arsenical poisoning."

It is not the practice of this state to use soluble arsenic compounds in spraying, and it is not the belief of the chemists of the station that the insoluble arsenates which are used will become soluble in our soils, which never contain alkali in any considerable quantity. While, therefore, indiscriminate and excessive spraying is in all cases inadvisable, all the experts of the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station are agreed in believing that the use of arsenates in accordance with directions published by the experiment station, and as practiced by the Gypsy Moth Commission, is not attended with danger to the trees or to the persons consuming the fruit of the trees.

In proof of the soundness of this view attention is called to the fact that in Massachusetts, where arsenic compounds have been more extensively and longer used in spraying than anywhere else, not a single instance is known where among orchard or shade trees where injury other than slight burning of the foliage due to excessive applications or improperly prepared materials has ever followed.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Liniment will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by Drug & Jewelry Co.

The following communication from the state board of control, relative to the action of a county asylum in this county, was read and on motion ordered to be filed in the office of the county clerk for reference.
Madison, Wis., March 3, 1909.
Hon. William Hooper, Chairman, County Board, Wood County, Grand Rapids, Wisconsin.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the board held today, the application of Wood county for a license to build a county asylum for the chronic insane, was taken up and discussed. The board decided to grant your county a license to erect a county asylum upon condition that it first secure a suitable site to consist of a farm containing not less than 400 acres. It is important that a farm of at least that number of acres be secured, because the inmates are better adapted to performing work on a farm, than to be employed in any other way. We find that where county asylums have large farms connected with them, that they are not only profitable to the county, but they furnish a means to the county asylum officers to employ the patients, and patients that are employed for those who are unemployed. At the present time we believe that your great land can be produced in Wood county at a reasonable price while if the matter of the purchase is delayed, the price will be materially increased.

We are pleased to be able to grant your county a license and will be glad to assist you in any way we can in the matter of plans for your institution. If there is any information that you desire concerning the cost, etc. of the county asylums recently built, we will also, if you desire, send for your examination plans of county asylums recently built.

Respectfully,
State Board of Control.
By L. B. Dresser, President.
Grand Rapids, Wisconsin, May 3, '09.

Very respectfully yours,
C. E. Boles, City Clerk.

Takes Water From River.
Henry Goldberg has had a pump and electric motor installed on the stone wall in the rear of the Wood block which is used in filling the street sprinkler. The tank is driven under the outlet of the pipe, the motor is out on the street, the motor is started, and the water is soon filled for business.

This changing to the use of river water is a good thing, as heretofore those engaged in sprinkling the streets have been allowed to take their water from the water works system, and in the summer when water was scarce the drain was considerable.

Now there is one more improvement that should be made and that is to have the city do the sprinkling, and the system would then be complete. With two sprinkler wagons, one for each side of the river, the entire business district could be worked probably extended farther than it is now.

Crazy Snake's Last Stand
BY EDWARD B. CLARK
(Copyright 1909 by W. A. Patterson)

With scores of deputies, soldiers and posses hunting the leader of the latest red skin outbreak, there could scarcely be a more timely subject for this issue of this paper. That is why the above story is the leading feature.

It is handsomely illustrated. You'll enjoy this story, because it tells Crazy Snake's side as well as that of his pursuers. Crazy Snake wore "Store Clothes." Did you know that? Learn some more by reading "Crazy Snake's Last Stand."
